

The beautiful pink light passes the times acceptance shown in the grins Hidden in the shadow of the sun
I will protect you

From the darkest womb came you
Who knew the light
That would shield and protect us for such times in a land with short sun and shorter grins

Wild, unbreaking grins Filled with you a boundless puppy playing in the sun
A child rolling down a hill, who bring the light
They come at the right times and fill the void you want to protect

But the world also needs to protect You, to keep the grins
To ensure we endure for all times you protect us, but we nourish you
The reflection of your bright light
Upon the sun

Beams from the sun
The world you long to protect
Even though the light
Is hard to see, and there are no grins
But cries, those who long for you To vanquish the dark times

But in the continuum of times
There is always the sun
And there is still always you
And together we each protect
I become the happy grins
I am the bright light

In these dark times, you will protect
The sun will release the grins
Unto you who will shine the bright light
